Case Study – Morrie Flack (Impaired Gas Exchange)

Case Studies Answers

Case Scenario

"I can't breathe!" Morrie gasped for breath. "Help me!" Morrie looks up at you, his nurse, with eyes filled with fear. He raises the head of the bed farther with the control and continues to gasp for breath. You feel your own anxiety increasing, like Morrie's anxiety is contagious. You push the overbed table so Morrie can lean forward on it, sit on his bed, and work with him to do pursed lip breathing and slow his breathing. You give him all the medications that he can have, and you pray he gets better.

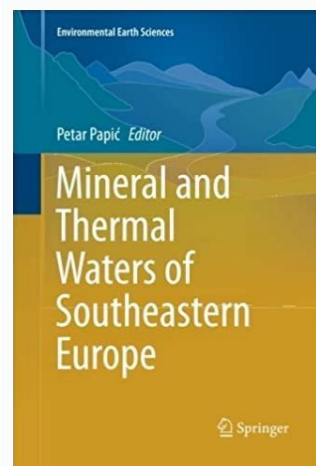

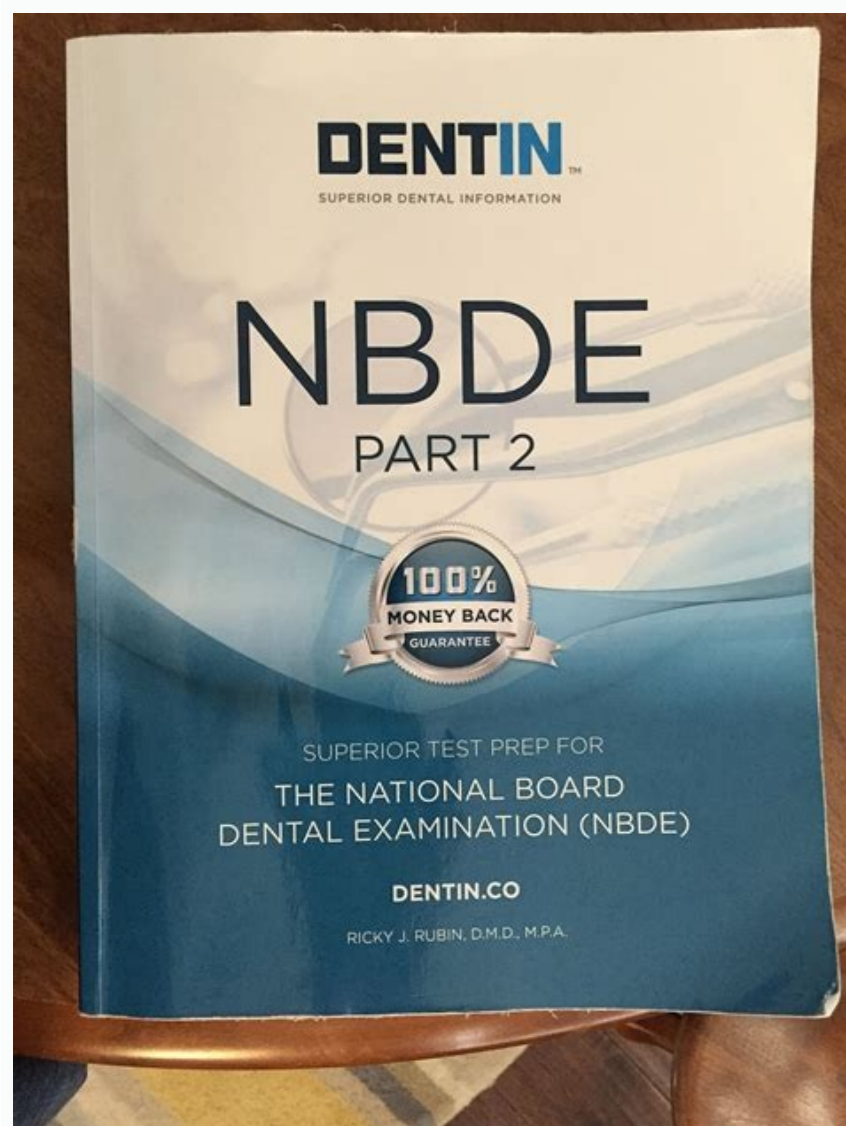

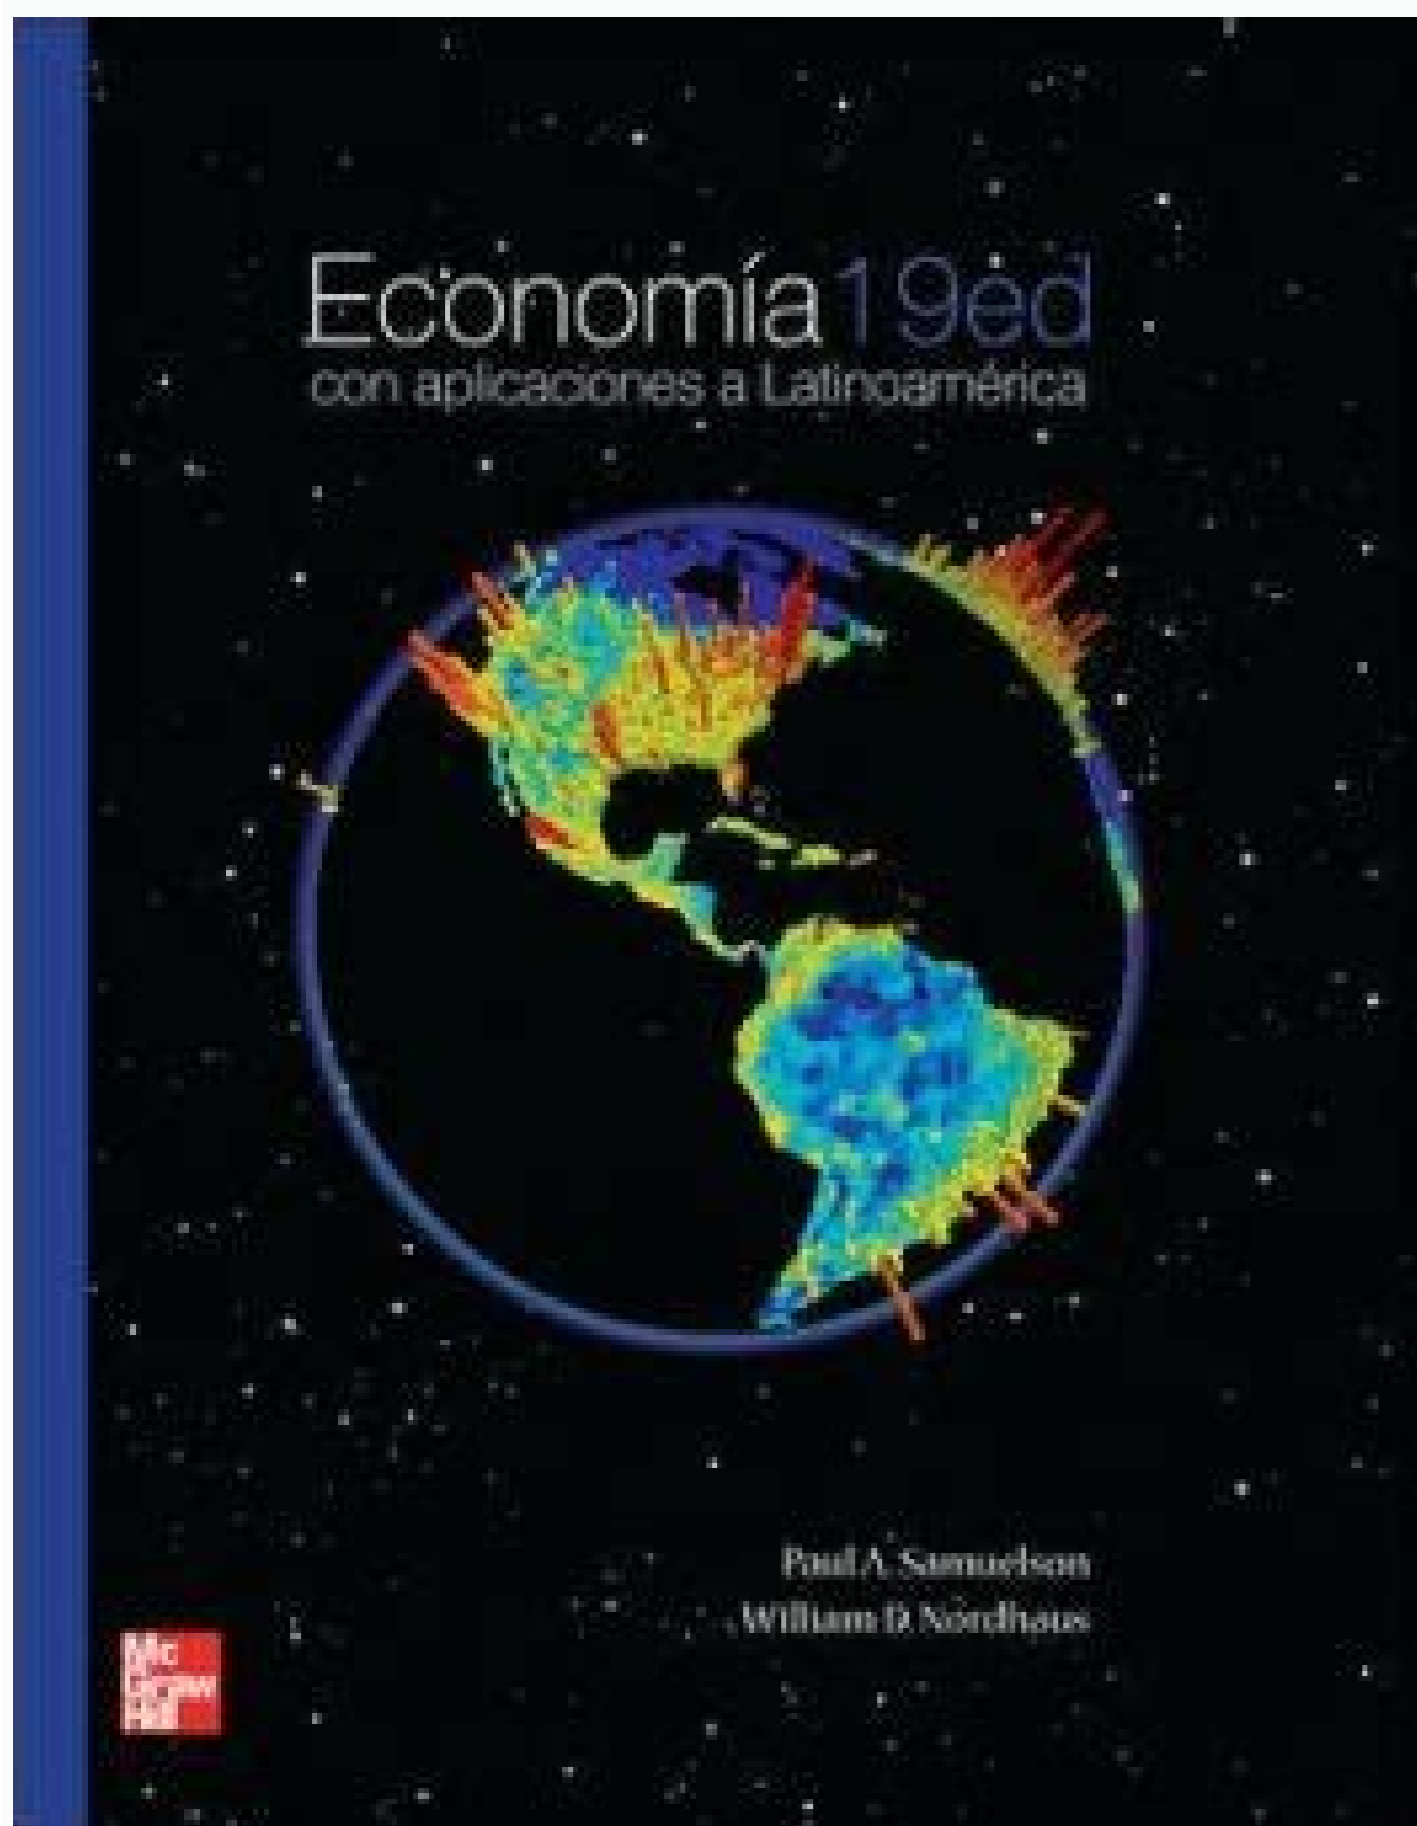

Nursing Assessment

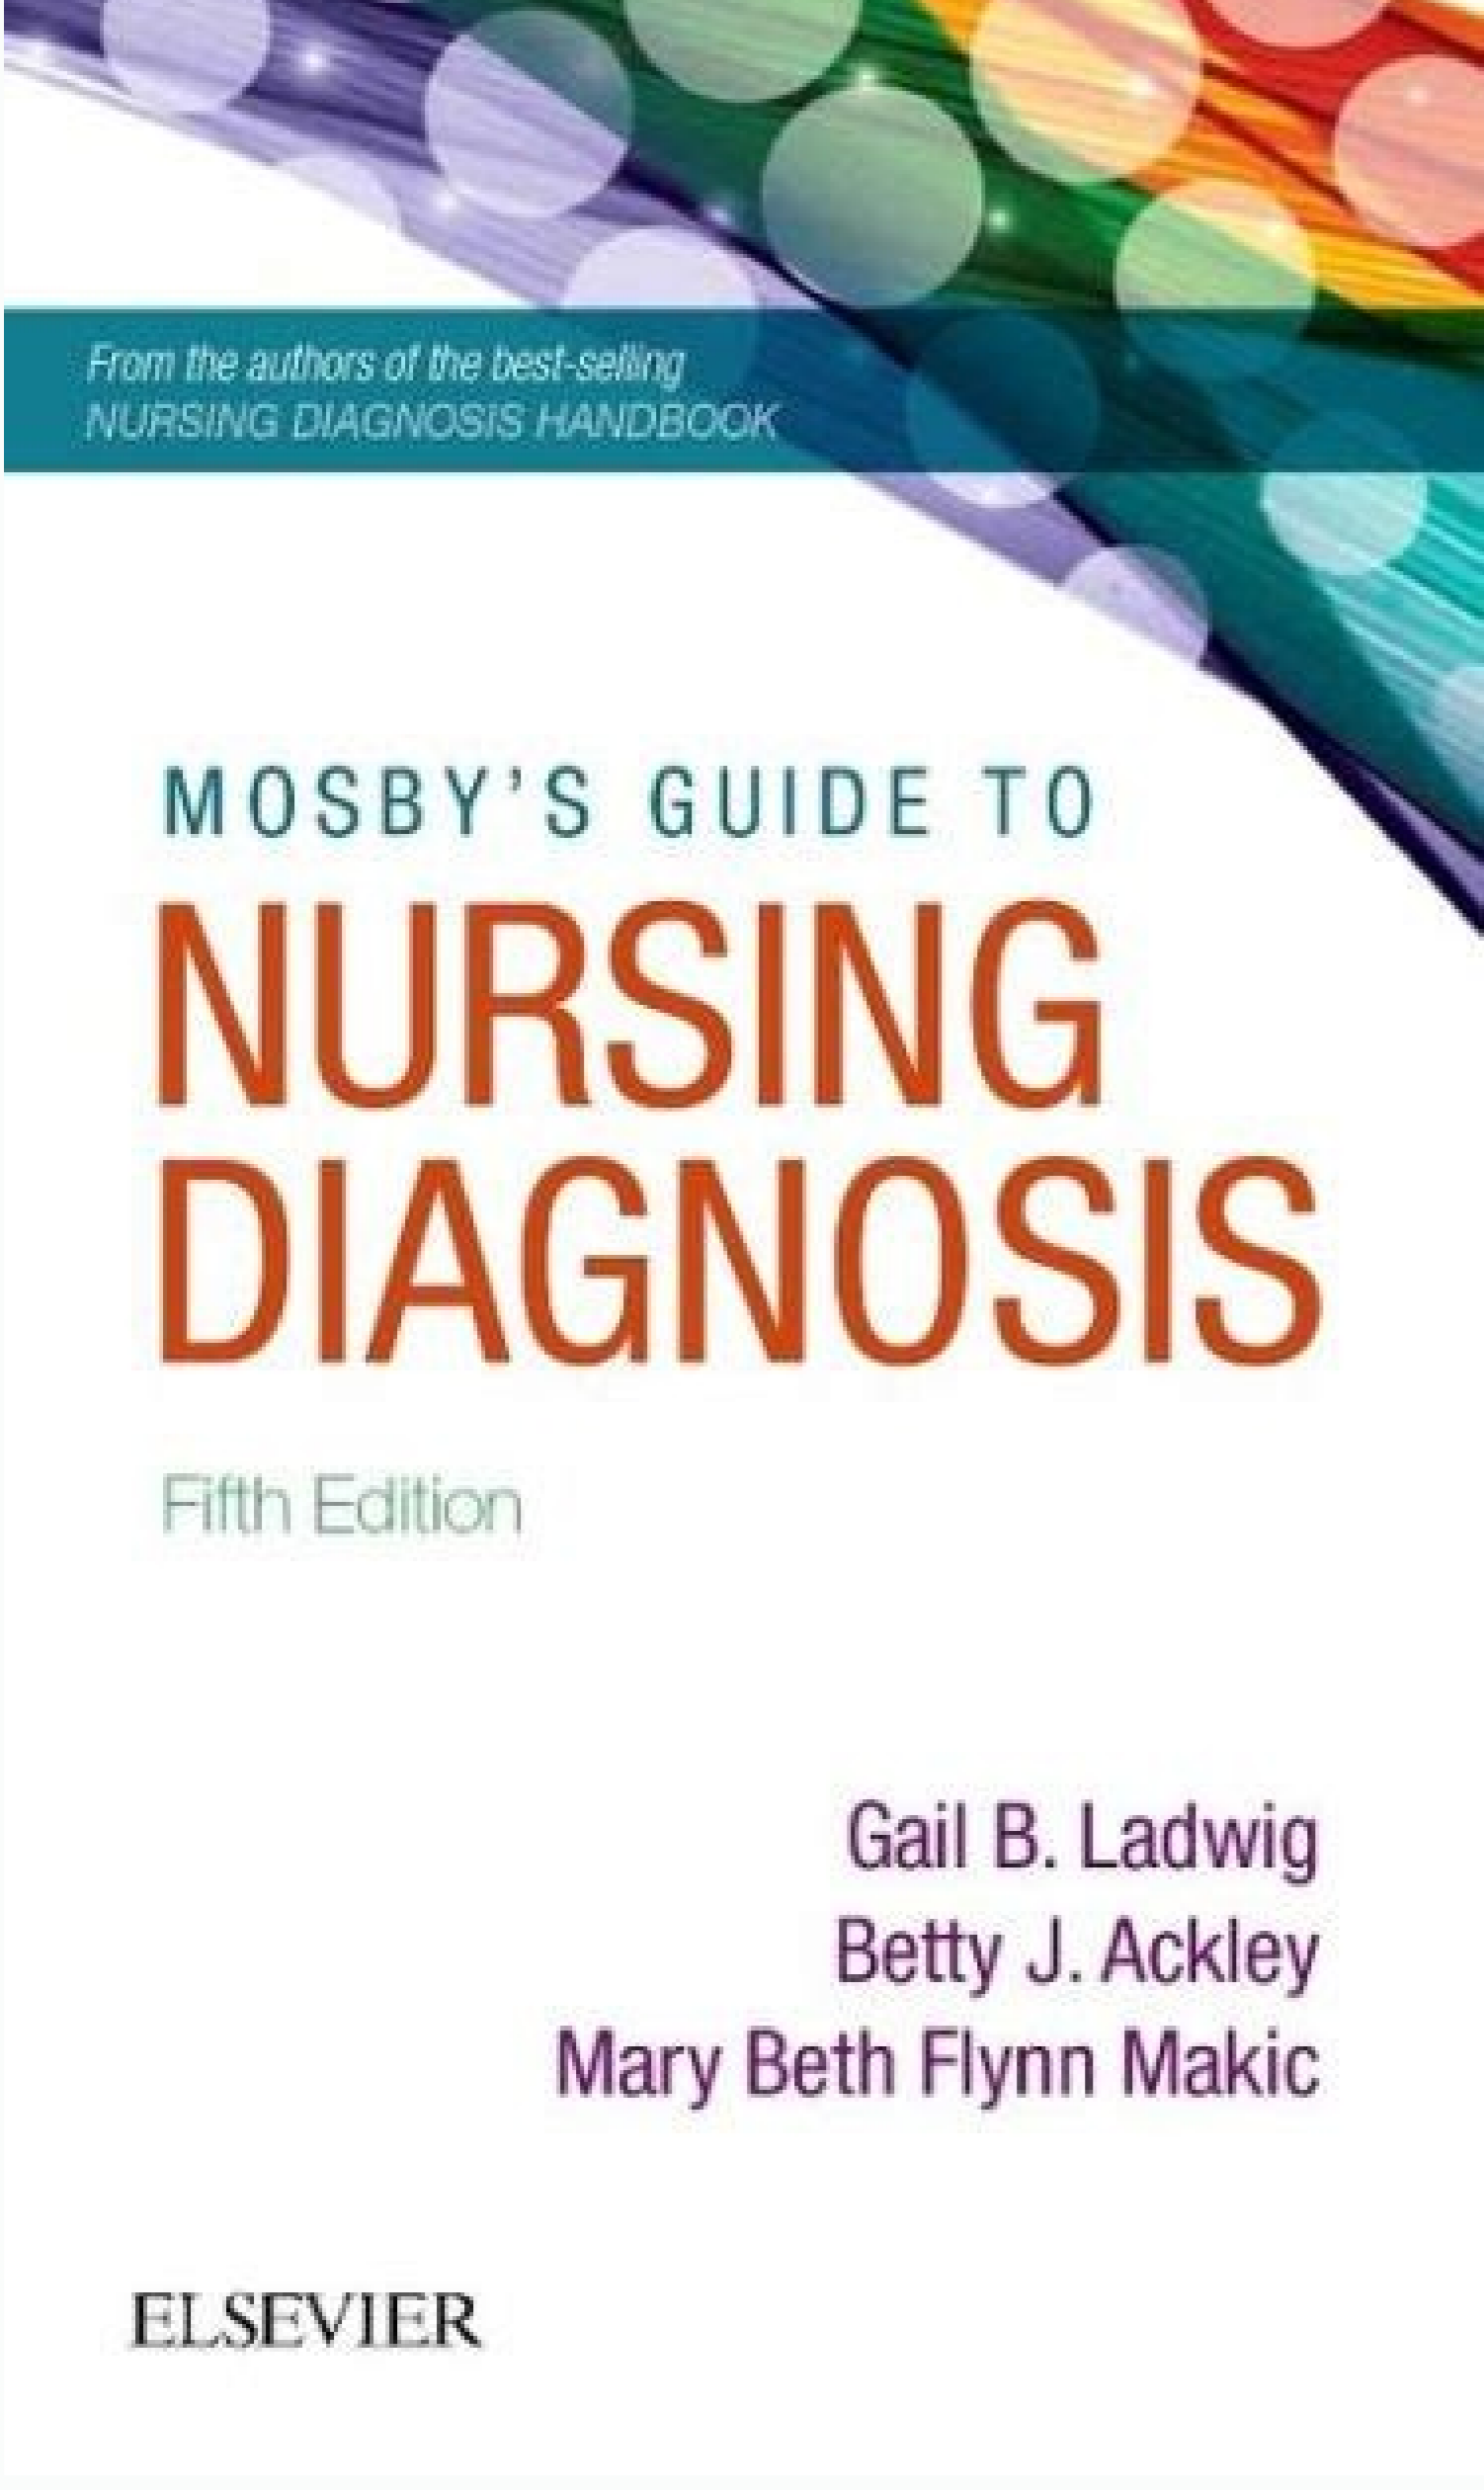

Morrie, aged 45, has chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD). He has been suffering for 5 years and is frequently a client on the respiratory nursing unit. He stopped smoking once diagnosed, but he still has significant lung disease. His vital signs are: 180/92-100/2-116, 28. His lung sounds are wheezing with loud crackles throughout. Oxygen saturation is 84 mm Hg. He has oxygen per Venturi mask. His toes and fingers are cyanotic, as are his oral mucous membranes.

A. ASSESS

1. Identify significant symptoms by underlining them in the assessment. See above.
2. List those symptoms that indicate the patient has a health problem (those you have underlined).
